Indonesia: Indonesian Army leaders and civilian non-Communist government elements are hopeful that the lack of rapport between President Sukarno and Khrushchev and the latter's casual attitude and behavior, apparently irritating to Sukarno, will obviate a "deal" between the two. Dependable sources earlier told American officials they believed Sukarno was willing to include Communists in the Indonesian cabinet and further reduce the army's power in return for major economic and military assistance from the USSR.

India - East Germany: [Indian Foreign Ministry Secretary Dutt believes India may be compelled to recognize East Germany by the end of 1960. Although Nehru has made it clear to East German representatives that he has no intention of extending such recognition in the near future, Dutt currently believes trade and political considerations may force Nehru to change his position.] [redacted]
